

Christmas 2007

'Twas the night before pick-up and all round the land,
The garbage was set out, in bags and in cans.
The house was all quiet, the family tucked into their beds,
With new Christmas day memories filling their heads.
It seemed only a minute since I laid my head down,
When from out on the road I heard a familiar sound.
No need to open a window, or throw back a sash,
I knew it's just the Ayers crew, grabbin' the trash.
It was earlier than normal, I do have to say,
But then I remembered, they're working a double today.
When it comes to garbage, three cans is the rule,
And they recycle every week, now that's pretty cool!
Your bottles and cans can all go in white bags,
They also take cardboard, newspapers and mags.
When it comes to big jobs a roll-off is the thing,
To get one delivered, just give them a ring.
Steve's the boss in the shop and keeps his crew on the run,
He's got big shoes to fill as Eldon's oldest grandson.
With drivers like Lee and Hoagie; Jerry, Kevin and Carl,
The work all gets done without as much as a snarl.
Rob, Alan and Paul all work from the step on the back
And then there's Marty and Herb in the recycle racks.
In the office taking calls it's Jo-Ann and Helen,
Sometimes Flossie still answers, there is simply no tellin'!
When you look at Ayers Sanitation from bottom to top,
In a Wal-Mart world they're still just Mom and Pop.
It's a small family outfit, so please pay what you owe 'em,
They'll do a great job and even send you a Christmas poem!
After only mere minutes the guys were back off on their run,
And I heard them say clearly
"A big thanks to our customers - you're all #1!"
